

Praying through the week 27th January 2025

John the Baptist

“He must become greater; I must become less.” (John 3:30)

Can we picture the scene? Crowds had been flocking to John to be baptised by him. Then, one day two of his disciples came to him to report about Jesus. “He is baptising, and everyone is going to him.”

Were they wondering what John’s reaction would be?

How surprised would they have been at his response?

“He must become greater; I must become less.”

John knew that he had been sent by God to prepare the way for Jesus and to point people to Him. He referred to Jesus as the bridegroom and himself as the friend whose role was to aid the bridegroom.

In what ways might John’s words and humility speak to us? Do they, perhaps, create in us a desire to see Jesus ‘become greater’ in our own lives?

Or maybe they challenge us in some way?

Could there be things we need to let go of so that Jesus can take His rightful place as bridegroom in our hearts?

Whatever our response to John’s words let’s share our thoughts with Jesus.

Maureen

Praying through the week 27th January 2025

John the Baptist

“He must become greater; I must become less.” (John 3:30)

Can we picture the scene? Crowds had been flocking to John to be baptised by him. Then, one day two of his disciples came to him to report about Jesus. “He is baptising, and everyone is going to him.”

Were they wondering what John’s reaction would be?

How surprised would they have been at his response?

“He must become greater; I must become less.”

John knew that he had been sent by God to prepare the way for Jesus and to point people to Him. He referred to Jesus as the bridegroom and himself as the friend whose role was to aid the bridegroom.

In what ways might John’s words and humility speak to us? Do they, perhaps, create in us a desire to see Jesus ‘become greater’ in our own lives?

Or maybe they challenge us in some way?

Could there be things we need to let go of so that Jesus can take His rightful place as bridegroom in our hearts?

Whatever our response to John’s words let’s share our thoughts with Jesus.

Maureen